Apollonia is an associate lawyer in the Pension and Employee Benefits group.

During her time as a summer and articling student at the firm, Apollonia supported the partners and associates in the Pension and Benefits group advising benefit plan trustees, unions, employees, and retirees with a range of pensions, benefits, labour, employment, and human rights matters. She assisted with and co-authored publications featured in the Plans & Trust magazine published by the International Foundation of Employee Benefit Plans.

Apollonia is a graduate of University of Toronto Faculty of Law. During her studies, she was a caseworker at Downtown Legal Services and represented the school in the Warren K. Winkler Class Actions Moot. Apollonia also served as an Editor on the Journal of Law and Equality and as a representative on the Students' Law Society.
