Garth Myers is an associate in the Litigation Group. His practice focuses on civil litigation, primarily in the area of class proceedings.

Garth is counsel in class actions in a wide variety of areas, including product liability, securities misrepresentation, regulatory negligence, institutional abuse and Crown liability. Garth's representative work includes:

- Counsel to investors in some of Canada's largest securities class proceedings, including actions against Sino-Forest Corporation, Valeant International Pharmaceuticals, Inc., and Kinross Gold Corporation;
- Counsel to 47 plaintiffs representing 30,000 indigenous Ecuadorian villagers against Chevron Corporation and Chevron Canada in an action to enforce a debt of US$9.51 billion arising from damages awarded in Ecuador for environmental harm;
- Counsel to members of the Canadian Armed Forces, the RCMP and the Federal public service who were dismissed because of their sexual orientation;
- Counsel to Indigenous peoples across the country against Canada for the so-called Sixties Scoop;
- Counsel to women in the Canadian Armed Forces in a class action alleging systemic gender-based discrimination, sexual harassment and assault;
- Counsel to the plaintiffs in class proceedings relating to metal-on-metal hip implants against Biomet, Inc., Stryker Corporation and Smith & Nephew Inc.;
- Counsel to former residents of Huronia Regional Centre and 14 other residential facilities for people with disabilities against the Province of Ontario; and
- Counsel to current and former inmates of correctional facilities against the Province of Ontario for damages arising from staffing-related lockdowns.

While completing his J.D. from Queen's University, Garth won an award for highest standing in the Advanced Torts course and graduated on the Dean's List. In addition, he was an active volunteer with Big Brothers Big Sisters

Canada and with Pro Bono Students Canada, and participated in an exchange program to the Rijksuniversiteit Groningen with a concentration in international law.

Garth completed his articles and worked as a summer student at Koskie Minsky before joining the Litigation Group as an associate.
