

Construction Liens and Construction Litigation

Koskie Minsky is widely recognized as one of Ontario's leading construction law firms by our peers and the construction industry. In addition to litigating and defending construction lien actions, we deal with delay claims, labour, material and performance bond claims, negligence and breach of trust actions, as well as tender bid claims.

Details

Koskie Minsky's construction law practice group represents a broad range of clients including lenders and owners, design professionals, general contractors and sub-trades, suppliers of services and materials, workers, unions and their benefit trust funds, and even other lawyers who are alleged to have been negligent in their representation of their construction clients. Our team approach ensures that we deliver the best possible results and report regularly to the client who is at all times kept apprised as to the status of their case.

Our construction law practice is also committed and experienced in finding alternative methods of dispute resolution when appropriate. Members of the firm are often involved in arbitrations, mediations and negotiations, and have received the knowledge required to recognise where such an approach might be helpful.
