FURTHER FURTHER AMENDED STATEMENT OF DEFENCE

1. Except as hereafter expressly admitted, the Defendant Her Majesty the Queen in Right of the Province of British Columbia (the "Province") denies every allegation in the Statement of Claim.
2. The Province admits paragraphs 1, 2, 17 and 29 of the Statement of Claim.

Overview

3. In reply to the whole of the Statement of Claim, the Province has never offered its employees medical services plan premiums or extended health benefits on retirement as a term of their employment. At all times, terms and conditions of employment for employees of the Province have been exhaustively set out either in collective agreements (for those in bargaining units) or subordinate legislation under the Public Service Act (formerly Civil Service Act), and no such collective agreement or subordinate legislation has ever provided for or promised these benefits.

4. Until 2000, the Province paid for medical services premiums and extended health benefits under the Public Service Benefit Plans Act. These statutory benefits were never incorporated in any contract with the Province's employees, and were subject to unilateral change at the will of the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council. In 2000, the Province agreed with the unions representing its employees to provide a defined level of funding for these benefits and for inflation protection for retirees, and agreed that a joint Board of Trustees, which includes a representative of the British Columbia Government Employees Association, Ed Bodner, would have responsibility and authority to make financial decisions concerning how to manage these funds and benefits (the "Partners' Agreement").

5. In 2002, rising costs caused the Board of Trustees to make the complained-of changes to the medical services plan premium subsidy and extended health benefits. The Province has at all times met its funding obligations under the Partners' Agreement and even agreed to increase them in 2003.

6. The Province therefore owed no contractual or fiduciary duty to the Plaintiff to provide extended health benefits or medical services plan premiums.

7. In the alternative, if the Plaintiff ever had a contractual right to extended health and medical services plan subsidies, the unions who signed the Partners' Agreement compromised that right on behalf of the Plaintiff in exchange for increased defined funding of post-retirement group benefits and inflation protection. The Partners' Agreement is made binding on all members of the Public Service Pension Plan, including the Plaintiff, by statute.

General Nature of Post-Retirement Group Benefits

8. Some employers and some occupational pension plans make available to retired employees or their beneficiaries group insurance plans, including extended health and dental plans. For reasons relating to the economics of insurance, the employees or beneficiaries may thereby obtain cheaper and better insurance that they would otherwise be able to get.

9. Some of these employers and pension plans go further, and subsidize, in whole or in part, the retired employees' or beneficiaries' premiums in the sponsored group insurance plans. Employer- or pension plan- subsidized group insurance for retired employees and their beneficiaries are referred to as "post-retirement group benefits."

10. The cost of post-retirement group benefits is a function of the following:

- (a) procedures and drugs covered;
- (b) utilization of procedures and drugs covered;
- (c) cost of procedures and drugs covered;
- (d) limitations on coverage, including
  - (i) deductibles;
  - (ii) co-payments;
  - (iii) maximum payment per procedure or drug;
  - (iv) maximum annual payment;
  - (v) maximum lifetime payment; and,
  - (vi) geographic restrictions (e.g., on out-of-province procedures or residents).
- (e) alternative coverage provided by universal health, pharmaceutical and dental programs;
- (f) number of retirees and beneficiaries; and
- (g) the proportion of the premium funded by the retiree or beneficiary.

11. Of the factors mentioned in paragraph 10, (a), (d) and (g) are controlled by the design of the benefit ("design parameters"), while (b), (c), (e) and (f) are external to the design of the benefit ("external parameters").

12. Post-retirement group benefits can be provided by employers or pension plans on any of the following bases:

- (a) such that the continued provision of post-retirement group benefits is solely within the discretion of the employer or pension trustees (“discretionary” basis);
- (b) such that the amount of funding for the post-retirement group benefits is guaranteed into the future (“defined funding” basis);
- (c) such that the design parameters in place at retirement are guaranteed for the life of the employee and his or her beneficiary (“defined benefit” basis); or
- (d) some combination of these bases.

13. If post-retirement group benefits are provided on a discretionary or defined funding basis, the design parameters can be changed if the external parameters drive costs higher. If, on the other hand, post-retirement group benefits are provided on a defined benefit basis, the design parameters cannot be changed, and the cost of providing post-retirement group benefits will rise if utilization, costs of procedures or drugs, the size of the retiree/beneficiary population increases or the coverage of alternative universal programs are cut back.

14. The financial implications to the employer or pension plan of each of these bases for provision of post-retirement group benefits are therefore very different:

- (a) A post-retirement group benefit provided on a discretionary basis is a current expense.
- (b) A post-retirement group benefit guaranteed by a defined funding formula is a predictable long-term liability.
- (c) A post-retirement group benefit guaranteed on a defined benefit basis creates a long-term liability of highly uncertain and variable magnitude.

15. By providing a post-retirement group benefit, an employer or pension plan does not thereby necessarily or implicitly promise to continue to provide it on a defined benefit basis. If employers or pension plans could not provide post-retirement group benefits on a discretionary or defined funding basis, but only on a defined benefit basis, fewer would provide them at all.

16. The intention to provide post-retirement group benefits on a defined benefit basis must be specifically manifested, either expressly or by implication, in an agreement or enactment applying to that retiree.

17. The right to a post-retirement group benefits on a defined benefit basis vests, if at all, on retirement. In the case of a unionized employee, it must be found, either implicitly or expressly, in the collective agreement governing that employee at the time of retirement. In the case of a non-unionized employee, it must be found, either implicitly or expressly, in that employee's individual contract of employment.

18. No collective agreement, contract or enactment has ever manifested the intention to provide the Plaintiff or other retired employees of the Province with post-retirement group benefits on a defined benefit basis.

Origin of Post-Retirement Group Benefits in the Public Service

19. In 1955, the Legislature enacted the Public Services Medical Plan Act, SBC 1955, c. 63 (the "PSMPA"). The PSMPA authorized the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council to provide for medical insurance plans, available to active civil servants and persons receiving an allowance under the Civil Service Superannuation Act, the predecessor to the Public Service Pension Plan (referred to herein with its predecessors as the "Plan"). Some, but not all, persons in receipt of pensions under the Plan were formerly employees of the Province.

20. The PSMPA allowed the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council to provide that some portion of the premiums of the medical insurance plans provided would be paid out of the consolidated revenue fund.

21. Under section 11 of the PSMPA, the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council had full authority to set and alter the "design parameters", including the portion of premiums paid by the persons receiving an allowance from the Plan (the "retirees"), the procedures and drugs covered, and the limitations on coverage set out at paragraph 10(d).

22. The Lieutenant Governor in Council did, in fact, fund a medical insurance plan called the British Columbia Government Employees Medical Plan.

23. Contributions from employees, retirees and from the Province, and disbursements in the form of premiums, were accounted for by the Province in the Public Services Medical Plan Account (“PSMPA”). The PSMPA was funded on a “pay as you go” basis: it did not accumulate assets.
24. Retirees paid part of the premiums for the British Columbia Government Employees Medical Plan. The remainder were funded by the Province, and therefore constituted a post-retirement group benefit.
25. Post-retirement group benefits under the PSMPA were provided on a discretionary basis, with the discretion vested in the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council.
26. Post-retirement group benefits were not part of compensation for positions in the civil service. Compensation for positions in the Civil Service were as prescribed by the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council under ss. 29 and 30 of the Civil Service Act, SBC 1945, c.29. Orders-in-Council under the Civil Service Act did not incorporate benefits under the PSMPA as a component of compensation.

Evolution of Post-Retirement Group Benefits in Public Service

27. The PSMPA was amended by SBC 1958, c. 43 and SBC 1963, c. 37.
28. Through the proclamation into force of s. 10 of the Medical Services Plan Act, SBC 1967, c. 24, the Province created a universal Medical Services Plan (“MSP”).
29. Effective July 1, 1968, the British Columbia Government Employees Medical Plan was wound up by B.C. Reg. 167/68.
30. By B.C. Reg. 168/68, also enacted pursuant to the PSMPA, the Province paid for 70% of universal MSP premiums for current employees and recipients of an allowance under the Plan. These payments were accounted for through the PSMPA.
31. The Lieutenant Governor in Council retained the right to alter the amount or proportion of the MSP premium subsidy. It was therefore a discretionary post-retirement group benefit.

32. In 1974, the Province proclaimed into force the Public Service Labour Relations Act, SBC 1973, c. 144 ("PSLRA"). With certain exclusions, employees of the Province became represented by statutory bargaining agents and their terms and conditions of employment governed by collective agreements between those bargaining agents and the Province.

33. Under the PSLRA, all terms and conditions of employment, with immaterial exceptions, for employees with a bargaining agent, must be found in a collective agreement between the bargaining agent and the Province.

34. No collective agreement signed by the Province has provided for post-retirement group benefits as a term and condition of employment, on either a defined funding or defined benefit basis.

35. The terms and conditions of employees excluded from collective bargaining under the Public Service Labour Relations Act have, since 1974, been governed by subordinate legislation under the Public Service Act, the successor to the Civil Service Act, as amended from time to time.

36. No such subordinate legislation has provided for the provision of post-retirement group benefits on either a defined funding or defined benefit basis.

37. In 1976, the PSMPA was incorporated as Part II of the Public Service Benefit Plans Act, RSBC 1976, c. 344 (the "PSBPA").

38. During the 1977 master round of collective bargaining between the Province and the BCGEU, the statutory bargaining agent for the biggest bargaining unit of employees of the Province, the BCGEU obtained a right to a dental plan and an extended health plan for active employees of the Province. This right was not vested, and could be altered by subsequent rounds of collective bargaining.

39. During the 1977 master round of collective bargaining, the BCGEU proposed a provision in the collective agreement giving those who retired from the bargaining unit a right to be covered by the extended health and dental plan. The Province refused to agree to this, and the BCGEU signed a collective agreement without this provision.

40. Effective August 1, 1978, the Lieutenant Governor in Council enacted, pursuant to the PSMPA, a regulation which provided that the Province would cover 100% of retirees' universal MSP premiums as they were at that time. No restriction, whether by enactment or contract, was imposed on the Province's ability to reduce this subsidy in the future.

41. During the 1979 master round of collective bargaining, the BCGEU again proposed a provision in the collective agreement giving those who retired from the bargaining unit a right to be covered by the extended health and dental plan. The Province again refused to agree to this, and no such provision has been part of that or any subsequent collective agreement.

42. The British Columbia Government Retired Employees Association ("BCGREA"), independent of the BCGEU, approached the Province and proposed that an extended health and dental benefit be extended to members of the Public Service Pension Plan, outside of the contractual or collective bargaining context.

43. The BCGREA represented by words and by conduct that it understood that any new post-retirement group benefits would be discretionary and not defined benefits, including by stating that it proposed the benefits as a "pilot project."

44. The Province agreed to provide an extended health benefit, but not a dental health benefit.

45. If someone had proposed that the extended health benefit was a defined benefit, the Province would not have provided it. The Province only quantified the cost of the extended health benefit as a current expense, and funded it on a "pay as you go" basis. No consideration was given to the long-term and uncertain financial consequences of a defined benefit, because the Province considered that it could always change the extended health benefit in future if financial circumstances changed.

46. Effective April 1, 1981, the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council introduced B.C. Reg. 34/81 pursuant to ss. 3, 6 of the Public Service Benefit Act, extending an Extended Health Benefit Care Plan to all recipients of a pension from the Public Service Pension Plan.

47. The Extended Health Care plan was extended by the Province without consideration, and without any intention to create a contractual relationship.

Introduction of Dental Benefit through the *Public Service Pension Plan

48. In 1992, the Province launched an initiative to reform the governance of the major public sector occupational pension plans, including the Public Service Pension Plan. For this purpose, the Province initiated a process of consultation with employee groups, including the BCGREA.

49. As part of this process, the Province told employee groups that new benefits, including post-retirement group benefits, could be considered providing (a) they did not require increased employer contributions and (b) they did not increase any unfunded liabilities for the Plan.

50. It was proposed by employee groups that employer contributions to the Plan's Inflation Adjustment Account ("IAA") be diverted to pay for improved post-retirement group benefits.

51. Under the Plan, retirees receive indexation allowances, equal to their basic pension entitlement times the rate of inflation, to the extent that there is money in the IAA to pay for them. Inflation protection is therefore a contingent benefit. At the material time, the Pension (Public Service) Act, RSBC 1976, c. 318 (the "P(PS)A") required employers, including the Province, to contribute an amount equal to 1.25% of the salaries of its participating employees to the IAA.

52. Because inflation protection was, and is, a benefit contingent on funding, reducing the amount paid into the IAA would not increase employer contributions or unfunded liabilities for the Plan. Instead, it would create a tradeoff between the generosity of post-retirement group benefits so funded and future security against inflation.

53. The employee groups represented to the Province that they understood this tradeoff, and were prepared to accept the risk to their members' future security against inflation.

54. In 1994, the Province enacted s. 52 of the Pension Statutes Amendment Act, 1994, which amended the P(PS)A to allow the Lieutenant Governor in Council to provide for extended health benefits and dental plan benefits out of the employer's contributions to the IAA. The post-retirement group benefits so provided for would be paid out of a "pay-as-you-go" account in the Public Service Plan, the Supplemental Benefits Account ("SBA"). Employers would pay 1.25% of the salaries of participating employees, in total, to the SBA and the IAA, so that the SBA would balance at $0.00 after paying for post-retirement group benefits and the IAA would accumulate the difference between the 1.25% of salaries and the amount needed to pay for post-retirement group benefits.

55. In 1994, the Lieutenant-Governor-in Council introduced a dental post-retirement group benefit under the Plan on this basis. Extended health and medical services plan benefits continued to be paid for through the PSMMPA. In 1995, B.C. Reg. 34/81 was replaced by the Pension Group Benefit Funding Reg., B.C. Reg. 141/95, also pursuant to the PSBA.

56. The dental plan was a post-retirement group benefit provided on a modified defined funding basis. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council had the power to change the level and nature of the post-retirement group benefits, but only so long as the percentage of salaries earmarked for combined IAA and post-retirement group benefits was not exceeded. The total funding for the IAA and post-retirement group benefits was fixed by statute, and could only be changed by the Legislature. Extended health and medical services plan benefits continued to be paid on a purely discretionary basis.

Joint Trusteeship and the Creation of Modified Defined Funding Post-Retirement Group Benefits

57. After 1994, employee and retiree groups, including the BCGREA, continued to advocate for a greater role in governing public sector pension plans and post-retirement group benefits.

58. In 1999, the Legislature enacted the Public Sector Pension Plans Act, SBC 1999, c. 44 (the "PSPPA"). The PSPPA set out a legislative framework for the transition to full joint trusteeship for each of the statutory plans. The statutory basis for the Plan is now Schedule C to the PSPPA.

59. Schedule C empowered the Province, the British Columbia Government and Service Employers' Union (BCGEU), the Professional Employees Association (PEA) and the Union of Psychiatric Nurses (UPN) (collectively, the “Plan Partners”) to negotiate a joint management agreement binding on all the members of the Public Service Pension Plan, including the retirees.

60. Although the BCGREA was not a party to a joint management agreement, Mr. Bodner, on behalf of the BCGREA, was consulted and involved in the negotiations.

61. One objective of the Province in the negotiation of the joint management agreement was to ensure that all the post-retirement group benefits would be funded out of the employer contributions to the IAA, as the dental post-retirement group benefit was, and as all post-retirement group benefits for other retired public sector employees were.

62. On December 8, 2000, representatives of the Province and of employees under the Public Service Pension Plan concluded the Joint Trust Agreement (the “Joint Trust Agreement”). The Joint Trust Agreement provided for the following:

- (a) guaranteed funding, from the participating employers, including the Province, for post-retirement group benefits and inflation protection, calculated as a percentage of payroll, changeable through agreement between the Province and the BCGEU;
- (b) an increased amount of funding from employers for inflation protection and post-retirement group benefits from 1.25% of payroll to 2.25% of payroll;
- (c) a one-time transfer of $100 million from the surplus in the Basic Account, of which the Province had the beneficial interest prior to Joint Trusteeship, to the IAA;
- (d) a joint Board of Trustees, one of whom is appointed by the BCGREA to make decisions about the Plan within existing financial constraints, including the design parameters of post-retirement group benefits and the necessary tradeoffs with inflation protection; and,
- (e) recognition that all post-retirement group benefits, including the extended health benefits and MSP premium subsidy previously provided through the PSBPA would be funded on the same basis as the dental benefit.

63. By entering into the Joint Trust Agreement, the Province gave up the ability to unilaterally reduce its financing to post-retirement group benefits and inflation protection and its previously unrestricted discretion concerning the nature of the post-retirement group benefits. In addition, it increased its financial commitment through the measures referred to in paragraphs (b) and (c). In return, the other Plan Partners, on behalf of all members of the Plan, abandoned any claim that the post-retirement group benefits were provided on a defined benefit basis and agreed that the Board would manage them, along with inflation protection, out of the fixed funding provided.

64. If, prior to the Partners' Agreement, the retired employees of the Province had a contractual right to extended health and medical services plan benefits on a defined benefit basis, which is denied, then that right was compromised by the Partners' Agreement for good and valuable consideration. The Partners' Agreement is binding on the retired employees of the Province by s. 18(6) of Schedule C of the PSPPA.

2002 Post-Retirement Group Benefit Changes

65. After the effective date of the Joint Trust Agreement, it was the responsibility of the Public Service Pension Board of Trustees (the "Board") to manage post-retirement group benefits and inflation protection within the financial constraints provided in a manner consistent with its fiduciary duty to the members of the Plan.

66. After the effective date of the Joint Trust Agreement, the Province's only duty was to continue to provide funding in accordance with the Joint Trust Agreement, or as amended by subsequent agreement with the BCGEU. The Province has met this duty.

67. Between December 2000 and October 2002, because of escalating costs of post-retirement group benefits, the Board became aware of the need to take measures so that post-retirement group benefits could continue to be funded from the available money.

68. Mr. Bodner was on the Board during this time, as the representative of BCGREA, and took part in these discussions and this decision.

69. The Board reacted to the escalating costs of post-retirement group benefits by making the following changes:

- (a) Eliminating existing dental coverage. The Board introduced an optional dental plan, with all premiums paid by retirees.
- (b) Not paying for increases in the universal MSP premium brought into effect on May 1, 2002. The Board continued to pay the same subsidy for pre-2002 MSP premiums.
- (c) Introducing a $250 per family deductible per year for the Extended Health plan.
- (d) Introducing a co-payment of 30% for claims paid up to $2000 per person per year. The Extended Health plan continued to pay for 100% of payments above $2000 per person per year.
- (e) Eliminating out-of-country coverage.
- (f) Increasing the lifetime limit for EHB claims to $100,000 (collectively, the “2002 Post-Retirement Group Benefit Changes”).

70. The 2002 Post-Retirement Group Benefit Changes were implemented by B.C. Reg. 276/02, effective January 1, 2003.

2003 Partners' Agreement

71. The BCGEU alleged that it had not been informed, at the time of the 2000 Joint Trust Agreement, of the total long-term costs of the existing post-retirement group benefits.

72. The BCGEU filed a Writ of Summons against the Province on August 29, 2003 in this Court under Action No. S034715.

73. In October 2003, the Province and the BCGEU agreed to increase employer and employee contributions to the Public Service Pension Plan Inflation Adjustment Account from 2.25% and 1.25% of salary to 2.5% and 1.5% respectively (the “October 2003 Partners’ Agreement"). Up to 50% of the total (i.e., 2% of salary) would be available for post-retirement group benefits when the October 2003 Partners Agreement is fully implemented.

74. It was an implicit term of the October 2003 Partners' Agreement that the BCGEU compromised any legal claim that the Plan members had in regard to post-retirement group benefits in return for the increased funding.

75. On December 12, 2003, the BCGEU discontinued Action No. S034715.

76. The October 2003 Partners' Agreement is a Partner's Agreement within the meaning of the Joint Trust Agreement, and therefore binding on all retirees, including the Plaintiff.

77. The Province pleads that this action comes within the implicit terms of the October 2003 Partners Agreement and has been effectively compromised on behalf of the Plaintiff and the other retirees.

Summary

78. Post-retirement group benefits, provided on a defined benefit basis, were never part of the compensation of employees of the Province. Before unionization, the Province provided for these benefits in a statutory scheme separate from that governing compensation. After collective bargaining, the Province refused to have such benefits in its collective agreements. By statute, all terms and conditions of employment of bargaining unit employees of the Province must be in collective agreements.

79. In any event, the 2000 Joint Trust Agreement made clear the basis on which the Province was providing post-retirement group benefits from that point on. The Province and other employers were obliged to provide a specific level of funding for post-retirement group benefits and inflation protection, while the Board, with representation from employee groups and the BCGREA, managed the funding in the interests of all the members. External factors have driven the costs of these benefits up, resulting in reforms, not by the Province, but by the Board.

80. Further, any claim was compromised by the BCGEU in October 2003 when the Province agreed to increase the employers' contributions to inflation security and post-retirement group benefits by 0.25% of salary.

Specific Responses to the Statement of Claim

81. In response to paragraph 3 of the Statement of Claim, some of the members of the proposed class were never employees of the Province, but of other participating employers in the Public Service Pension Plan, and others were not employees of the Province at the time of their retirement. Those who were never employed by the Province cannot sue it in contract. Those who were not employed by the Province at the time of their retirement cannot have vested rights to post-retirement group benefits.

82. In response to paragraph 11, medical service plan payments and extended health benefits for retirees were not part of the pension plan until April 1, 2001. At no time were they part of the terms and conditions of employment.

83. The formula referred to in paragraph 13 never considered post-retirement group benefits. In any event, the formula has not been used since collective bargaining was introduced in 1974.

84. In response to paragraph 15, statements to the Plaintiff on the occasion of his retirement were intended to inform him of his existing entitlement under an enactment. They were not intended, and could not reasonably be understood, to be contractual offers. They also could not reasonably be taken to fetter future changes to the enactment under which the Plaintiff received the benefits.

85. In response to paragraph 18, post-retirement group benefits could not have vested in the plaintiff class on a defined benefit basis for two reasons:

- (a) Vesting, if it happened at all, would require recognition, either implicit or explicit in collective agreements governing employees in bargaining units; and,
- (b) Post-retirement group benefits were routinely changed without any renegotiation of contracts. In particular,
  - (i) coverage for hearing aids was reduced in 1982; and,
  - (ii) in 1996, the maximum age for a dependent child not enrolled in a postsecondary institution was reduced from 21 years to 19 years;

90. In reply to paragraph 27, none of the communications referred to could reasonably be understood to be promises or contractual offers. The terms and conditions of employment for persons employed by the Province must be set out in collective agreement or in an enactment under the Public Service Act. At no time was any entitlement to post-retirement group benefits so set out. Benefits paid by the Province for its employees or former employees which were not terms and conditions of employment are not enforceable.

91. In reply to paragraph 28, the Joint Trust Agreement and the Board it created are not vehicles or agents of the Province. Since 2000, the Province has not had unilateral control over the funding of post-retirement group benefits and indexation, but can only change the funding through agreement with the BCGEU or through statute.

92. In reply to paragraph 30, the terms of the Communications could not be part of the Plaintiff and Retired Members' employment terms because they were (a) not part of the collective bargaining process for unionized employees; (b) not part of the Terms and Conditions document for excluded employees; (c) not communicated by an employer at all in the case of those Retired Members employed by entities other than the Province. In further reply to paragraph 30, the terms of the Communications referring to the Benefits could not be part of the Pension Plan at the material time, because the Benefits were not part of the Pension Plan at the material time.

93. In reply to paragraph 31 and 32, neither the governance of the Plan nor the specific amount of funding for post-retirement group benefits and indexation was created solely by the Province, but by joint agreement with the other plan partners, acting on behalf of all the plan members.

94. In reply to paragraph 33, the main reason for the need to change post-retirement group benefits was the escalating costs and utilization of drugs and procedures covered by the Extended Health plan.

95. In reply to paragraph 34, the Province has at all times met its obligations to pay monies for post-retirement group benefits and inflation protection.

~~96. In reply to paragraph 32, employers do not owe a fiduciary duty to their employees in bargaining terms and conditions of employment. The Province's responsibility in bargaining with its employees is to look out for the best interest of the public as a whole, and it cannot have an overriding fiduciary duty to its employees.~~

~~97. — Alternatively, if the Province had a fiduciary duty, it did not breach it. Measures to maintain the financial sustainability of post-retirement group benefits benefit the retired employees.~~

~~98. — In reply to paragraph 33, discretion concerning the nature and amount of post-retirement group benefits is vested in the Board, not the Province. In 2002, the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council acted pursuant to the advice of the Board, which had a fiduciary duty to the retirees and exercised it. The Province has no discretion in relation to the amount it must make available for inflation protection and post-retirement group benefits.~~

~~99. — In reply to paragraph 34 and 35, if the retired employees have been disadvantaged, which is denied, it is by increases in the costs of medical care outside anyone's control. As members of the Plan, the retired employees have been protected from those costs more than most retired persons.~~

~~100. — None of the acts complained of in paragraphs 36 through 39 of the Statement of Claim were acts of the Province. The Province continued to fund in accordance with its obligations throughout the relevant time.~~

~~96. In reply to paragraph 35, none of the acts or omissions complained of were acts or omissions of the Province when it was administrator of the Pension Plan. The Benefits were not part of the Pension Plan when the Province was administrator thereof. All of the Province's fiduciary duties as Administrator of the Pension Plan had already been met.~~

~~97. In reply to paragraph 36(a), the Province never accepted or collected contributions from the Plaintiff or other members of the plaintiff class or any employers in relation to the Benefits.~~

~~98. In reply to paragraphs 36(b) and 36(c) the Province acted as trustee in relation to contributions to the Pension Fund; however, at the material time, the Benefits were not paid out~~ of the Pension Fund. The Province discharged its fiduciary obligations in relation to the Pension Fund by transferring custody of it to the Board in April 2001.

99. In reply to paragraph 36(d), the Province did not guarantee or insure the Retiree Benefits. All guarantees and indemnities binding on the Province must be approved under the Guarantees and Indemnities Regulation.

100. In reply to paragraph 36(e), prior to April 2001, the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council had unrestricted discretion in relation to the content, terms and conditions, eligibility requirements, premium subsidies of the Retiree Benefits. No fiduciary duty could attach to this discretion. These Retiree Benefits were paid out of the consolidated revenue fund. It is inconsistent with the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council's responsibility for the expenditure of public money for it to owe a fiduciary duty to any part of the public in relation to the payment of public money.

101. In reply to paragraphs 37 and 38, it is inconsistent with the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council's responsibility to taxpayers for it to owe an overriding fiduciary duty to the recipients of public money. So the Province's fiduciary obligations in relation to the Pension Plan could not apply to the Retiree Benefits.

102. In reply to paragraph 39(a), the Retiree Benefits were not part of the Pension Plan at the material time. In any event, it is not contrary to a sponsor's fiduciary obligations for it to amend benefits in its own interests.

103. In reply to paragraph 39(b), the transfer of fiduciary responsibility to the Pension Board was done in the best interests of the Pension Plan beneficiaries.

104. In reply to paragraph 39(c), the Province has always funded all the accounts in the Pension Fund in accordance with its obligations under the Pension Plan, including the Inflation Adjustment Account.

105. In reply to paragraph 39(d), the Province was under no obligation to provide Retiree Benefits on a premium-free basis for life.

106. In reply to paragraph 39(e), the Superannuation Commissioner did not "promise" that the Plaintiff and members of the Plaintiff Class would receive premium-free Retiree Benefits for life.

107. In reply to paragraph 39(f) the Superannuation Commissioner merely informed the Plaintiff and Plaintiff Class of their legislated entitlements at the time of the communication. If the Communications were misleading in any way, which is denied, the Plaintiff and Plaintiff Class have suffered no loss, since they can show no reliance.

108. In reply to paragraph 39(g), none of the rights of the Plaintiff referred to were vested by legislation.

109. In reply to paragraph 39(f), there is nothing wrong with an employer sponsor of a pension plan considering its own interests in changing the terms of the pension plan. In any event, the Retiree Benefits were not, at the relevant time, part of the Pension Plan.

110. In reply to paragraph 47, the Province puts the Plaintiff to the proof of his damages.

111. In reply to paragraph 48 of the Statement of Claim, the Province denies it has acted in an arbitrary, callous or high-handed way.

Remedy

~~103. In response to paragraph (a) of the Prayer for Relief, the action should not be certified as a class proceeding pursuant to the Class Proceedings Act.~~

112. In response to paragraph (b), the declaration sought should be sought against the Board, not the Province. Further, the declaration sought is inconsistent with the power of the Board to alter the design parameters of post-retirement group benefits set out in Schedule C to the PSPPA.

113. Paragraphs (c) and (d) of the Prayer for Relief are orders in the nature of mandamus, injunction or specific performance and are therefore not available against the Province.

114. The requests for compensatory damages, punitive damages, interest and costs should be denied.

~~107. If the Plaintiff Class, or any of them, had a vested right to post-retirement group benefits as they were at the time of their retirement, which the Province denies, then the Province pleads as follows:~~

(a) — ~~The 2002 Post-Retirement Group Benefit Reform is invalid.~~

(b) — ~~The Board had an obligation to divert all of the employer's contributions to the IAA to provide the Plaintiff Class, or those of them with vested rights, with those post-retirement group benefits provided to them on retirement in priority to any provision for indexation or for unvested post-retirement group benefits.~~

(c) — ~~Monies paid into the Inflation Adjustment Account from November 2002 to trial have been paid by mistake, and the Inflation Adjustment Account has been enriched to the detriment of the Plaintiff class without juristic reason.~~

(d) — ~~The Board must amend the Public Service Pension Plan Rules to give priority to the vested rights.~~

Wherefore the Province asks:

A. that the action be dismissed;

B. — ~~that the action not be certified under the Class Proceedings Act;~~

C. — ~~in the alternative, for a declaration that monies paid by the Province into the Inflation Adjustment Account from October 1, 2002 to the date of trial are subject to a constructive trust for the benefit of the Plaintiff class to the extent necessary to make the Plaintiff class whole;~~

D. — ~~also in the alternative, for a declaration that all of the Province's contributions to the Inflation Adjustment Account from the date of trial must be allocated by the Board to the provision of Retiree Benefits to the Plaintiff class from the date of trial until such time as the Province's contributions to the Inflation Adjustment Account are surplus to the vested rights of the Plaintiff class; and,~~

E. costs.

Dated March 2008.
